

COMMUNICATION

TRAINING
ASIA

Effective communication is all about conveying your messages to other people clearly and unambiguously.

It's also about receiving information that others are sending to you,
with as little distortion as possible.

1. Purpose

The purpose of this document is to propose a program for your Junior through to your executive management team to improve their communication skills.

2. Proposed Course Title

Communication Skills Workshop

3. Introduction

In order for an organization to reap success and grow with continuum, it is vital for it to have successful communicators and we understand that regardless of the size of company you work in – a large multinational corporation, a small company or home based business – good communication skills are always essential.

Communication can be verbal or written, delivered face-to-face or at a distance. It doesn't just involve the exchange of information, communication also requires social interaction between the participants and this is where a more subtle form of communication is important – body language.

Because we use communication skills all the time, we're often expected to be naturally good communicators. But, like in all other areas of work, training is needed to develop and hone these skills.

Poor communication can cost dearly. It leads to confusion, wasted time and missed opportunities and can make the difference between a flourishing and struggling business. Businesses that understand the importance of communication training reap the rewards through employees that perform better in all aspects of their work.

Above all poor or miscommunication will affect your guest's satisfaction and enjoyment resulting in them being dissatisfied with your business, potentially losing their business and or costing your business money in expensive both in time and money on service recovery.

4. Learning Objectives

5. Who Should Attend

The course is designed specifically for the level attending from Supervisory level, junior management, executive team through to director level.

6. Methodology

Visual, oral, audio, games and role plays will be the key methodology used. The medium of instruction shall be in English with some Thai speaking and a 100% PowerPoint presentation and workbook in both English & Thai languages, if required.

To the right are shown some photos from some of our recent communication skills training.

We fully understand and adhere to the principles that you only remember:-

20% of what you hear

30% of what you see

50% of what you hear and see

70% of what you hear, see and say

90% of what you hear, see, say & DO !

Our training spends more time ‘doing’ and less time ‘listening’

The communication training uses a PowerPoint presentation and accompanying workbook which are both in English & Thai languages to maximise understanding.

During the training the participants work through their workbooks filling in areas which are presented to them and are discussed to reinforce their understanding and aid their memory.
